DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 1-14 are objected to because of the following informalities:

Claim 1 recites the limitation "the vehicle body panels" in line 6. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Regarding claims 2-6 and 8-10, "A trim panel assembly" (line 1) needs to be changed to -- A reinforced trim panel assembly--.

Claim 3 recites the limitation "said reinforcement member" in lines 2 and 6. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Regarding claim 3, "said integral first trim panel member" (line 3) needs to be changed to --said first trim panel member--.

Claims 7 and 11 recites the limitations "the vehicle body panels" and "said reinforcement member". There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-3 and 6-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Furuyama et al. US 2001/0025456.

Regarding claim 1, Furuyama et al. '456 discloses a reinforced trim panel assembly for a vehicle body panel comprising a first trim panel member adjacent to a second trim panel member along a first seam; a reinforcement bracket disposed between said trim panel members and the vehicle body panels, and positioned over said first seam and secured to each of said first trim panel member and said second trim panel member using a fastening means, wherein said reinforcement bracket absorbs a force from an impact to said trim panel assembly to prevent separation of said seam.

Regarding claim 2, Furuyama et al. '456 discloses the reinforced trim panel assembly wherein said first trim panel member is generally planar and extends vertically and longitudinally a predetermined distance, and said second trim panel member is generally planar and extends vertically and longitudinally a predetermined distance.

Regarding claim 3, Furuyama et al. '456 discloses the reinforced trim panel assembly wherein said reinforcement member is generally planar and has a slope corresponding to the shape of said integral first trim panel member and said second trim panel member, and also extends longitudinally and vertically a predetermined distance, so that at least a portion of said first seam is covered by said reinforcement member.

Regarding claims 6 and 10, Furuyama et al. '456 discloses the reinforced trim panel assembly wherein said fastening means is a screw.

Regarding claim 7, Furuyama et al. '456 discloses a reinforced trim panel assembly attached to a body panel of a vehicle comprising a first trim panel that is generally planar and extends vertically and longitudinally a predetermined distance; second trim panel member adjacent to said first trim panel member adjacent to said first trim panel member along a first seam, and said second trim panel member is generally planar and extends vertically and longitudinally a predetermined distance; and a reinforcement bracket disposed between said panel member and the vehicle body panels, and positioned over said first seam and secured to each of said first trim panel member and said second trim panel member using a fastening means, wherein said reinforcement member is generally planar and has a shape corresponding to the shape of the integral first trim panel member and said second trim panel member, and also extends longitudinally and vertically a predetermined distance, so that at least a portion of said first seam is covered by said reinforcement member, and said reinforcement bracket absorbs a force from an impact to said trim panel assembly to prevent separation of said first seam.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 11-14 are allowed.

5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

The recitations of the specific features of the third trim panel member in claim 11 including especially the construction of the third trim panel member adjacent a lower edge of the second trim panel member along a second seam, and the third trim panel member is generally planar and extends vertically and longitudinally a predetermined distance is not taught nor is fairly suggested by the prior art of record.

6. Claims 4, 5, 8 and 9 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Art Unit: 3612

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

The cited references show several other trim panel assemblies similar to that of the current invention.
